Subject: The ex-Baghdad Pact paper and the new forgery paper

I've read this to see how much of it covers the same ground as the forgery paper. The only part that does is pages 17, 18 and the first half of 19. They constitute a capsule account of the subject, and it seems to me probably ought to remain as a part of this particular discussion.

There will necessarily be a paragraph or two of repetition in the paper on forgery alone, but since forgery replay is a part of the subject discussed in the BP paper while the other paper is devoted to that part alone, I don't believe the degree of repetition per se is enough to worry about.
